Students who are not going to be present for face to face lectures will have the choice to view the teaching either from their own computer in real time on the live streaming dates, by video at another time, or through joining a remote or video tutorial. Remote tutorials will be face to face groups of GD students participating in the live streamed workshop with a trained facilitator present to facilitate discussion and conduct assessments. Video tutorials will be face to face groups of students watching the video of the workshop with a trained facilitator present to facilitate discussion and conduct assessments.

Intensives can be thought of as multi-day workshops. The key difference being that the majority of assessments are intended to be completed by the end of the intensive. Units offered by intensive will not be offered on-line which means that even students who undertake the GD by distance education will be required to travel to and participate in these intensives.
